3 quotes

"So why do I hate Shaw so much? Because I can see the Fabian Society for what it was: another offshoot of the Theosophy Project, which I have hit elsewhere. They pretty much admit that. The Fabian Society was a splinter off the Fellowship of the New Life, founded by Scotsman Thomas Davidson. Davidson was like their Henry Steel Olcott across the pond: a cloaked agent and fascist posing as an intellectual and progressive. In fact, Davidson was in the US by 1867, landing first in Boston. Always a red flag. That is precisely the time Olcott was working his magic. Davidson spent a couple of years in St. Louis in the late 1860s, but was back in Cambridge (Boston) in 1875, just in time for the kick-off of Theosophy."

and

"We also see this with Fabianism, which got its shallow and corrupted philosophy straight from Davidson and the dungeons of Intelligence.

The Fabian Society's basis was to promote the transfer of land and capital to the State, equality of citizenship of men and women, and having public authority instead of private for the education and support of children.

That may have sounded noble to some naive persons at the time, but we now see what it really meant:

transferring all your capital to the bankers, outlawing the idea and very words of gender, and allowing the bankers to educate your children in their own image. It is right from today's headlines, as the Governors tell parents they have no say in what is taught to their children, and that if they complain they will be tagged as terrorists and stalked by the FBI and Justice Department. Parents pushing back against schoolboards that have been infiltrated and packed by agents of Pfizer and Bill Gates are being violently arrested. So that is what Shaw's "public authority" has become in practice, right in front of your eyes. You think the Fabians would have learned that after the failures of Communism in Russia and China back in the 1920s, 30s and 40s, with tyrants taking over and crushing their own populations.

You would think the world would have learned about the Fabians at least. But no. They are still at it, and most people don't even know it.

So that's why I hate Shaw and the rest of these cloaked agents

and

"While I am here I should expose the other first Fabians Sidney Webb and Beatrice Webb.

Beatrice was born Martha Beatrice Potter, also a Heyworth, also from great wealth. The house she was born in, Standish House, was so large it is now a hospital. The Potter in It's a Wonderful Life was patterned on these people, since Beatrice's father was Chairman of the Great Western Railway. These Potters hit the big time in the peerage when they joined up with the millionaire Palmers of York in 1808. They also linked up with the Kennedys at the same time. A bit later they also married the Stuarts. The Heyworths were also wealthy merchants, descended recently from the Spencer-Churchills through the Marjoribanks. Sidney Webb is one of the most scrubbed persons I have run across, and if you are a reader of mine you may already know why: he was related to the current Queen, who is a Webb in her Cavendish line. Wikipedia tells us nothing of his parents, which is strange for a recent Baron and founder of the London School of Economics.

Yes, the Fabians founded the LSE, which is reason enough to hate it, them, and anyone linked to it, including the Rolling Stones."

Hi Pete, yes so much about Fabianism. I'll be honest, and it'll come at no surprise to most, that though I'd heard of Fabianism, and was there not a 50's singer called Fabian, I wasn't aware of it's political implications or really what it was about until today. Ben's showing of the G'B' Shaw speech really opened my eyes. You were obviously up on it mate, makes me feel even more retarded.

Behave Ian! I was fooled by them for most of my life too. But I woke up to them when my son's uni mate went to the LSE after Uni

The lad was very well connected into old left Labour. His old man having once worked for Tony Benn. So I did some research and I opened up Pandoras box. Helped by MM too. What a bunch of frauds!

The lad went on to become a barrister after studying at the Inner Temple in the City. That's a whole other cesspit of iniquity, that I won't bore you with now

Btw, funny story about Tony Benn. Back in the day I knew this Trotskyist in Liverpool, who was involved with Socialist Workers Party, or something similar, cant remember exactly. He's dead now, so I can't ask him either. He was very active, including joining companies to work and then fomenting strikes and the like. An agitator Trotskyist provocateur

[The misguided fool, Trotsky was the Money Powers man in Communist Russia! That is why Stalin offed him. Mate didn't know that, and nor did I until recently]

Anyhow old mate once met Tony Benn at some function or other. Had a very amicable discussion with him too

Benn told him, "I've got a tip for you lad"

Mate says "What's that then?"

Benn says "Never trust a man with shiny shoes" 😊

The Fabians have been change agents since the 1884. They were big players in the founding of the Labour Party in 1900. All of them rooted in the rich capitalists too, the sons and daughters of the rich

The Fabians original logo was literally a wolf in a sheepskin, but that was too obvious, so they changed to a turtle. They have been a major part in the slow march through the institutions. They've captured them all now, government, medicine, education, local government, police etc etc. All of them woke and all of them working against the common interest in some way

Ben has excellent well-honed presentation skills, and cogent analysis, which is always done with a smile and good humour.

These skills and his sense of conviction and determination will be of great value when our generation is no longer around, which is what the PTSB are doing their best to accelerate. I feel we should be grateful to see people like Ben coming forward and speaking out.

In addition to the three larger pyramids, there were in total also eight smaller pyramids on the Giza plateau in Ancient Egypt. To many, it is clear that the three larger pyramids refer to Orion's Belt. These three pyramids were built below on the surface of our home planet, just as these three stars are above in the sky ("As Above, So Below"). More info...
